Description

Virtual Reality offers a lot of space for social exchange. Social VR includes all virtual reality apps in which people meet people. All communications and network tools used today are given a new dimension of immersion. Messenger services, social and professional networks, multiplayer games, conference calls and even events will take place in virtual reality. Users can choose from a variety of recorded or simulated settings to make inexpensive short trips, make arrangements or meet their friends in various parts of the world. Through the eye contact of our avatar substitutes, which convey our language and gestures, Social VR has become the first empathetic virtual means of communication.
