Description

Rural areas are becoming more popular as a result of the steady rise in real estate costs in cities. Independent initiatives give the villages an urban touch in the form of pop-up services such as restaurants, exhibitions, cafes, theatres and shops. Distance work, e-commerce and mobile local supply do the rest. Projects such as the Hyperloop can help significantly reduce the cost of passenger and freight transport, while autonomous drones and 3D printing eliminate the need to travel by car or truck. Meanwhile, digital workers are travelling to their workplaces or yoga retreats in the country.
