

Cognitive Computing

Created at: 25.02.2019
Created by: Scout 4strat
Modified at: 24.05.2020
Modified by: Alun Rhydderch

Description

Up to now, the performance of computers has been severely limited by their analogue input interfaces. Neural networks based on biological templates are now changing the way that computers gather, process and store information. By imitating the human brain, computers become capable of learning and can independently complete complex tasks. The innovation potential of cognitive computing goes much further still. Machine learning enables systems to develop their own awareness of their surroundings and interact with them without needing humans as intermediaries.

Tags

Artificial Intelligence cognitive computing neural networks

STEEP

- Technological

Links

TRENDS

AI and Advanced Machine Learning

Projects

RTA Future Scanning - Information & Trends

Rating criterion	04.06.2020
Importance	